Dear Hiring Manager,

In my search for new creative endeavors, I was thrilled to find the QA Engineer opening. As an ambitious professional experienced in utilizing automation testing tools for 3 years now, I believe that I would be an excellent asset to your team.

My career with automation testing began straight out of college when I learned in-depth about the software development lifecycle and hasn't stopped or slowed since then. I began my first professional days as a software quality assurance engineer for NCR. This is where I got an opportunity to utilize my knowledge of agile methodology. I worked closely with a team of developers to meet product requirement specifications, participated in story grooming and sprint planning.

At Incosa solutions, I, with my teammate, created a Beta program and preliminary product QA for a crane controller. As it was a compact team, when push came to shove, I always stood up to perform multiple tasks such as to develop and maintain test automation frameworks, create software requirement specification report at the initial alpha phase, and participate in product deployment. Being able to multi-task efficiently helped me to earn the above and beyond recognition award.

Alteris group provided me the ultimate opportunity to test and verify utilizing automation tools such as Cypress IO and postman to perform end to end testing. I had a major commitment towards API and performance testing. I played a major role during an up-gradation of the legacy system. I was able to come up to speed within a month and was able to get approval to my proof of concept about bringing CYPRESS IO into service. As an automation engineer, succeeding at Alteris group proved to me that there isn't a topic, language, framework, or a platform that I can't learn.

I am a forever enthusiastic person when it comes to learning and completely dedicated to my work. I always give everything I have got to what I do and I truly want to bring that dedication and passion to my team. For a greater illustration of my background and qualifications, please review my enclosed resume. I am eager to speak with you about this opportunity and thoroughly appreciate your consideration.

Sincerely,
Shivani Joshi
